Die BV P-194

wurde im Jahre 1944 bei Blohm & Voss als einsitziges Mehrzweckflugzeug konstruiert. Sie gelangte zwar nicht mehr bis zur Truppe, war aber am Reißbrett fast fertiggestellt. Sie hätte mit Bomben verschiedener Größen ausgerüstet werden können, und bot darüber hinaus eine hohe Bodengeschwindigkeit und eine gute Steigleistung mit brauchbaren Starteigenschaften. Diese vielfältigen Eigenschaften hätten einen Einsatz als Schlachtfighter, Zerstörer, Stuka und Aufklärer möglich gemacht. Die Standardbewaffnung sollte aus zwei MG 151 und zwei überschweren Bordkanonen bestehen, und der variable Rumpf hätte die Unterbringung verschiedener Waffenkombinationen ermöglicht. Die Anordnung des starken BMW 801 Kolbentriebwerks am Rumpf und des Strahltriebwerks unter der Besatzungsgondel stellte für die damalige Zeit eine kühne Konstruktion dar. In ihren Flugleistungen hätte die BV P-194 die Dornier Do 335 übertreffen sollen. Wäre sie zum Einsatz gekommen, wäre sie eines der interessantesten Flugzeuge der damaligen Zeit geworden.

The BV P-194

was designed in 1944 by Blohm & Voss as a single-seat multi-role aircraft. It never got off the drawing board, although it was almost completed. It could have been equipped with bombs of various sizes, it also offered a high ground speed and a good climb performance with very useful take-off characteristics. These versatile features would have enabled it to be used for ground attack, as a destroyer, dive-bomber or reconnaissance aircraft. The standard armament would have consisted of two 151 MGs and two heavy cannon, the variable fuselage could have accommodated a wide variety of bomb combinations. The configuration of heavy BMW 801 reciprocating engine in the fuselage and jet engine under the nacelle represented a bold design for that time. The performance of the BV P-104 should have excelled that of the Dornier DO 335. If it had ever been supplied it would have been one of the most interesting aircraft of its period.
