Messerschmitt Bf 109 E-4
I/JG 51, early August 1940, Northern France. The aircraft is in typical camouflage of RLM 71/02

Forward fuselage was, according to photographs, almost certainly white, being very rare recognition markings used during operation "Adlerangriff" Wing tips and the rudder were dark yellow and some of the camouflage spots were visible through the yellow paint.
Spinner was painted RLM 70.

Messerschmitt BF 109 E-3
Flown by S. Stojanov, Bulgaria, Spring 1942
All "Emils" delivered to Bulgaria were painted in Luftwaffe camouflage colors, however in different schemes.
Spinner was painted RLM 70

Messerschmitt BF 109 E-3a, Wk. Nr. 2643

GSV ES2V ARR, flown by Sublocotenent aviator Ion Gaiea, Mamaia-Cernavoda-Constanta, late 1943

Aircraft in standard export camouflage, however on the upper surfaces the older Luftwaffe camo is still visible through the thin layer of the new paint. German Balkenkreuze has been painted over with Romanian roundels and then they have been painted over again with yellow crosses. Spinner was painted black & white as shown.
